About Me

You have found your way to the blog "they" don't want you to read. Before I tell you about them, though, let me tell you about myself. My name is Timothy Richards, but everyone calls me Casey. Since 1999 I have continually maintained a virtual presence on the internet. Early on I started a website called Casey's Apartment where I earned the title of the first gay "CamWhore".

I've always lived my life to the beat of a different drum and never been scared to share my views with others. I am a Gay Atheist Pornographer and probably one of the most hated men in America (at least by the religious right). My bold theories to live and let live and never be ashamed of not fitting into the typical America mold is exactly what got me in trouble.

In 2005 I was arrested directly by George W. Bush's Department of Justice. My crime at the time was a mystery "to be determined at a later date". Over the past years I've watched constitutional right I thought I had fly out the window. Currently, I remain a political prisoner of war fighting for an unpopular cause. The right to live my life, produce gay pornography, date whomever I want without interference from the US government.

As terms of my current indefinite confinement, I cannot access a computer, and have never seen this blog. It is, though, the commitment of my family, friends, and fans that I have been given my voice back. Each day in my jail cell I prepare the stories contained in these blogs so they can be delivered to you.

This blog is not about why I'm here. It's not about when I'm getting out. It isn't about my political beliefs or my fight against oppression. All those details can be easily found on my other website, FreeCasey.com, if you are interested.

What this blog is about is the stories that come out of where I am now, and where I have been. That's the Now or Then part of it. At times I'll share with you stories of stabbings, rapes, and other such chaos from behind prison bars. At others I'll tell you about my memories of moments in the past. I'll also cover reviews of current books I'm reading, stories from the media, stories from other inmates, and basically anything that crosses my mind. The only topic to be avoided here is those of my struggle simply because that is more than documented in the media and my other website.

If you're a Gay Cyber Historian you may remember this domain name. In 2003 it was owned by another individual who came into my life and flipped it upside down. He is someone who holds a high plateau in my heart and mind. He showed me what unconditional love was and taught me how to trust again. I will always be indebted to him for all that he has given me. For those reasons and more, I choose this domain name in honor of all he has done for me. I hope one day to be able to return the favor.

If you are interested in learning more about me outside this blog, there are many places to look. I have my primary website, FreeCasey.com, with all the details from my fight against the FBI and United States Government. Or you can pop over to CaseyandDew.TV for a look at my TV series I ran before my arrest. Searching for "Casey and Dew" on YouTube or GoogleVideo will give you lots of my work. You can also reach me at myspace.com/CBLCasey.

I hope you enjoy the most hated blog by the Department of Justice. If any word contained within this site pisses off just one federal employee, then I've done my job.

Happy Reading,
Casey

Disclaimer for the Evangelical Readers

It might be assumed that because I am a "non-believing homosexual pervert" that I am deserving of infinite incarceration. It should however be pointed out that I am the only atheist in jail here (99% report as Christians). Of the homosexuals, I am among a handful (this is a 1,000+ person jail). Finally, on the issue of pervert, alright, you got me, there are a lot of perverts here. Of course most of them are Christian Perverts, so there!
